

Tuesday 9:15 p.m.

THE BAR IN SUGARHOUSE

Possibly a Time Machine

The Bar, The A-Frame, The Shack—no matter what you call it, this beer-only drinking den, built in 1922, oozes history from its walls. It's the kind of place where you lose track of time talking to complete strangers about river trips, conspiracy theories, skiing with legends and the lure of the wide-open West. It's a throwback to the old days, where old-timers pay with quarters and nobody knows any better than to be friends, not just friendly. It could be that there's no room in the place to be an outsider, or it could be the welcoming bartenders and $3 pints. Either way, it works.

2168 S. Highland Drive,
Salt Lake City, 801-485-1232

Thursday 8.45 p.m.

CAMPFIRE LOUNGE

A Shot Away From That Outdoor Feeling

Like any worthwhile camping trip, Sugar House's newest bar runs on Jack Daniel's. His statue overlooks the bar, ensuring $3 Jack all day, every day. Going with the bar's camping theme, you order the PB&J—PBR and a shot of Jack, just $5. After a couple of rounds, you grab a menu, which features camp staples like hobo dinners, hot dogs, brats and s'mores. But you order the tots and bask in the glory of salty, crunchy, booze-absorbing perfection.

837 E. 2100 South, Salt Lake
City, 801-467-3325

Friday 7.45 p.m.

SUGARHOUSE PUB

More Room for Everyone

From pub to super pub, the expanded Sugarhouse Pub is simply more of a good thing, providing two full bars, three pool tables, foosball and lots of comfy seating for neighborhood loyalists. The pub is buzzing with 20-somethings, seasoned couples, work buddies, second dates and future missed connections. With more parking for bikes than cars and no food other than pretzels and brats, this central Sugar House spot caters to its surrounding neighborhood, but now it's big enough to welcome everyone ... and their friends.

1992 S. 1100 East, Salt Lake City,
801-413-2857

Wednesday 8:30 p.m.

FATS GRILL

Pool & Beer With a Sidecar of Live Music

There are more than a few excuses to get to this Sugar House staple. The pool and burgers may have put Fats on the map, but vintage car shows every other Monday and Paint, Wine & Dine nights every first Thursday attract a wide swath of merry drinkers. Plus, there's Tuesday's pool tournament and Wednesday's coffee-shop-style acoustic night, which has lured in mellow, weekday drinkers and chatty couples. It's worth it to return on the weekends; on Friday and Saturday nights, bands let loose on a rollicking crowd (for free!) thanks to a crisp sound system, huge stage, dance floor and full bar downstairs, confirming Fats as the only real music venue in Sugar House.

2182 S. Highland Drive, Salt Lake City,
801-484-9467, FatsGrillSLC.com